
The Tower Korean Movie English Subtitle This film is an adaptation of the Korean novel Cheongju-ti which was written in 1916. It's a tragic story about a group of exiles thrown into the cruel life in Seoul during Japanese occupation. This film is about how these people survive in this difficult period and their subsequent guilt, regret, and revenge.

The film was directed by Park Sang-jin (박상진) who also starred in it beside Gong Woo-jin (공우진) who played innocent country boy Kim Yoon-jeong (김윤정). The film was adapted from a novel called "Cheongju-ti" by Kim Yoon-jeong. The film crew had to visit various locations in Seoul and went to Gyeongju, Changnyeong, and Seokmacheon to get a feel for the city of Cheongju. Drama series "The Tower" features Gong Woo-jin as a country boy who has been exiled from his town. He meets a woman named Park Myeong-soon (Park Hyeon-gyu) who runs a laundry shop in Seoul near Buddha's Tripitaka Temple. To earn money to repay the debt he owes, he asks her to do deliveries for him. But things turn out not as they intended and neither of them knows what to do about it... Park Hyeon-gyu and Gong Woo-jin starred in this historical drama which was adapted from a novel and many of the scenes and scenery were shot in Cheongju, Gyeongju, Changnyeong, and Seokmacheon. This film was released one year after Park Hyeon-gyu lost his wife Kim Sun-ee (also Park Hyeon-gyu's co star) as well as his mother (Kim Soo-jin) to cancer. Gong Woo-jin had won an award for Best Actor at the 7th Yeosu Film Festival in 2008. The film was released on April 12, 2010.

The film was directed by Lee Hyeon-seok (이현석) who also starred as a lead character along with Park Hyeon-gyu. He also acted as one of the producers on this historical drama which was based upon a novel titled "Cheongju Myeong-sook" by Lee Seon-jo which chronicles a revolutionary priest Choi Kyung-ho's (Lee Hyeon-seok) efforts to establish formal ties with Japanese authorities in late Meiji era Cheongju. The film also stars Kim Mi-shik (김미식), Park Hyeon-gyu, Lee Young-ae (이영애), and Choi Soo-yeong (최수영). The ratings for this film were high at the time of its release as it was showing in a multiplex theater as well as being broadcast on the major television stations. "Cheongju Myeong-sook" was also screened at the Vancouver Asian Film Festival, Busan International Film Festival, Hong Kong International Film Festival, and CPH:DOX Berlin.
